Abstract: The paper refers to aspects of the practical teaching of students in American universities compared to Romanian requirements of this activity in order to provide possible improvements of the process. Although systems are similar, there are interesting ideas to be applied to the practical teaching of students in Lucian Blaga University inside the limits of the legal regulation referring to the process. A comparative view of teaching practice organization shows similar systems but a slightly different approach of this important activity considering aspects such as multicultural interactivity of the future teacher, wider knowledge of specific cultures and traditions.

Keywords: practical teaching, students, teachers.
